Study proposals may hurt WT expansion plans

West Texas State University plans to construct a building in Amarillo to house continuing education programs could be foiled if state legislators follow initial recommendations of a special legislative committee.

The initial recommendations, made public by the so-called Hobby Commission, include a recommendation that no state funds be expended for construction of permanent buildings and facilities at upper-level centers and extension centers.

The university, which is now offering upper-level coursework in Amarillo public school buildings at Amarillo College, had discussed the possibility of constructing a building in Amarillo solely for extension work. The plan was discussed and made public after the university failed to obtain the old Mary E. Bivins Library building in downtown Amarillo for a center.

Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, university president, reviewed the recommendations of the special commission last week and said it appears from a first reading that the university's expansion plans into Amarillo could be hampered if the legislature adopts the recommendation.

While the recommendations do not speak to the continued offering of coursework in situations such as Amarillo, Watkins agreed the university might have to continue to use rented space for Amarillo offerings.

"But I can't help but think that it would be helpful to the region if in the future we had a permanent home in Amarillo," he said.

Watkins said the basic thrust of the proposals aimed at higher education institutions seems to be against a continuing wave of new building and off-campus center start-ups.

"A lot of the proposals show a cognizance of some need for change in attitudes about expansion and construction," he said.

"We all need to adopt a responsible attitude about expansion of post-secondary education. Right now we're in a period where all are suffering from the creation in the 1960s of too many institutions all across America.

"You can't be in opposition to a general thrust to be accountable in construction. I favor it and I favor the concept that any new construction should be highly justified."

"The proposals don't rule out completely needed expansion but they suggest expansion will be done only after careful study and justification."

Watkins said the basic thrust of the recommendations, other than the one which seems specifically to stand in the way of WTSU expansion into Amarillo, will have little impact on the university.

He said all data available indicates the university will for the next decade or so experience a fairly stable student population, a situation which will not demand much of any new construction.

"I believe the important growth we will be doing in the next decade will be programmatic in nature," he said, noting that the university is still hoping for eventual approval of a master's degree program in nursing and a doctoral degree in agri-business.

"We will be defining growth in terms of qualitative growth in relation to new programs, strengthening of current programs and interdisciplinary combinations that today aren't even seen."

One other recommendation in a lengthy list made public by the Hobby Commission caused some concern for Watkins. It is a proposal that ad valorem tax bonds and the permanent university fund be used to finance renovations and remodeling of buildings and library books.

Watkins said he hopes that even if the recommendation were adopted that the general appropriation by the legislature for library books would not be deleted.

The commission recommendations relating to higher education are:

"That no new public senior or upper-level college or university or professional school be authorized by the legislature.

"That no new upper-level college, university, branch, or center be created and no existing upper-level college, university, branch or center be authorized to expand to a four-year institution or to combine with a community college to form a four-year institution."

"That the coordinating board should develop policies for the established and continued operation of upper-level centers.

Such policies would define and clarify purposes of upper-level centers, establish criteria for coordinating board decisions regarding continuance or discontinuance of centers, establish scope of center operations, identify criteria for coordinating board approval of program offerings at such centers and delineate responsibilities among the center, parent institution and community college.

"That state funds not be expended for construction of new buildings and facilities at upper-level centers and upper-level extension centers."

"That a constitutional amendment be submitted to the voters which would authorize all statutory, free-standing senior institutions to participate in one of the constitutional building funds."

"That state funds not be expended for construction of permanent buildings and facilities at upper-level centers and extension centers."

"That constitutional amendments be proposed to broaden the use of Permanent University Fund and Ad Valorem Tax Bonds to include major repairs, conversions,

School officials to try for 'A-1' bond rating today in New York

Canyon school officials will be trying for an "A-1" bond rating this weekend as they travel to New York City to meet with rating firms in an effort to enhance the sale of $2.95 million in bonds.

Financial Advisor Bob Davis of Underwood, Neuhaus and Co. of Amarillo said last week he is hopeful the school district can obtain the higher rating after meeting with two firms in New York.

The district currently has a rating of "A."

"I'd like to see us get an 'A-1' but on 80 per cent of value I don't know," Davis said. "We very well might."

"It would be helpful if we could get an 'A-1' but at least we need to retain our 'A'."

Davis will travel to New York with Supt. Jerry Jacobs, Board President Tom Keeling, Business Manager Ronnie Wood and Joe Gidden, manager of Southwestern Public Service Co. in Canyon. The men will visit Standard and Poors and Moody Investments for rating interviews.

Davis said a higher rating on the $2.95 million in bonds which the district hopes to sell in mid-August would mean a substantial savings in interest payments over the period of the issue.

He said the difference in interest rates which can be obtained for an "AA" rated district and an "A" district is one-half of one per cent "and that's a lot of money."

The difference between an "A" rating and an "A-1" rating, he said, might be as much as one-quarter of one per cent.

Davis believes the adoption by the school board last week of a 15-year pay-out schedule for the bonds may enhance chances for receiving the higher rating.

Word on the ratings should be sent the district from New York within a week to 10 days after this weekend's meetings, Davis said. Last Tuesday night, the school board adopted a 15-year pay-out schedule for the bond issue which voters okayed in May at the polls.

Davis figured the tentative schedule on an interest rate of 5.75 per cent but told board members he believes that rate can be lowered somewhat when bids on the bonds are opened Aug. 17.

With the 5.75 per cent interest rate, the district would pay nearly $2 million in interest by the end of the 15-year period.

Revenue from the sale of the bonds will be used to finance construction of a new elementary school which is to be built at a site at Western Street and Sandown Lane south of Amarillo and about a mile and a half south of Gene Howe Elementary School.

The bonds will also finance construction of new facilities and renovation of old facilities at Canyon High School.

Study of possible athletic discrimination asked

West Texas State University is largely in compliance with Title IX, a new federal law which forbids discrimination, but should closely study its athletic offerings, a special committee is to report to President Lloyd I. Watkins.

Karen Johnson, university legal counsel, said Thursday the report will be turned over to Watkins when every member of the committee has had an opportunity to vote on its contents. Three members who attended a meeting of the committee Thursday voted to submit the report and recommendations to the president. Five other members were not present for the meeting.

The report, which will apparently also be reviewed and approved by university regents, is to be filed at the university.

Under Title IX regulations, the report was to have been on file by Wednesday.

The report recommends Watkins name a special committee to examine the university's athletic offerings to determine compliance with Title IX, the most controversial sections of which outlaw discrimination in athletics.

The wording of the report is such that it is not stated that the university is not in compliance with Title IX in athletics.

Miss Johnson was vague on the point, too. She said the committee did not necessarily find discriminatory practices in athletics and prefers that a separate committee with expertise in the athletic area study the situation.

The committee lists 10 areas in athletics "be researched and discussed."

"It is the committee's opinion that a special committee with expertise in this area be established to decide the necessary steps that need to be taken by West Texas State University to eliminate any possible discrimination," the report states.

The report concerning athletics was not nearly so strongly worded as earlier draft reports released through the committee chairman.

Areas in athletics which should be reviewed by the special committee, the report says, are:

"Whether selection of sports and level of competition effectively accommodates the interests and abilities of members of both sexes

"Provision of equipment and supplies

- *Schedule of games and practice times
- *Travel and per diem allowance
- *Opportunity to receive coaching and outside tutoring
- *Assignment and compensation of coaches and tutors
- *Provision of locker room, practice, and competitive facilities
- *Provision of medical and training facilities
- *Provision of housing and dining facilities
- *Publicity

The report says the committee examined records and data on student housing, counseling and student activities, academic course offerings and facilities, admissions policies, financial aid for students, and employment of academic and non-academic personnel.

In each of those categories except the last, the employment of academic and non-academic personnel, the committee reports that it is its opinion the university does not discriminate.

In the last category, the committee report says "It is the opinion of the committee that (WTSU) is in compliance with Title IX in the area of employment of academic and non-academic personnel."

The committee also established formal grievance procedures for students, faculty members and staff members who complain they have been discriminated against. If adopted by the WTSU regents the procedures would call for extended powers of the currently operating Faculty Grievance Committee and two new committees to review complaints by students and staff.

While the university committee has apparently nearly finished its review of university activities and offerings as required by Title IX, W. V. McAlpin, administrative assistant for the Canyon School District, said last week he has almost completed a similar survey required under the law of public school systems.

McAlpin last spring distributed a questionnaire to administrators, faculty members and staff members for completion concerning the district's compliance with Title IX regulations. The questionnaire had been designed by the Texas Education Agency.

Three women take 'outstanding' award

Three Canyon women have been named by the Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Women of America Awards program according to a recent announcement and will be included in the 1976 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America."

Selected for the recognition from Canyon were Sandra Judith Meek of 3203 Conner Drive, Joanna Lee Flack of 211 4th Avenue, and Karen Lee Johnson who resides at 2700 SW 16th in Amarillo.

Miss Meek, a graduate of West Texas State University, is the current dean of women for her alma mater.

Mrs. Flack is an active club woman and member of the Heritage Woman's Club of Canyon.

Miss Johnson is the legal counselor for West Texas State University.

The Outstanding Young Women of America Program is designed to give honors and encourage (See THREE, page 5)

Other impact here said minimal

Juvenile ruling could delay center need

A 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision last week striking down reforms initiated by an East Texas federal judge will have little impact here, local officials say, because federal law is as reform-conscious as the judge.

The circuit court ruling, which refers the decisions of U.S. Dist. Judge William W. Justice to a three-judge panel for review, could, though, forestall the immediate need for some sort of regional juvenile detention center in the 25-county Panhandle area, according to County Judge Woody Pond.

Pond, who was indirectly forced from hearing juvenile cases in his county court by a Justice ruling in 1974, has been a member of a committee studying the funding and operation of a regional juvenile detention facility made mandatory by a Justice ruling ordering the closing of two key Texas Youth Council facilities downstate.

If the decision does, in fact, forestall the need for a regional facility, Pond says it will also save area counties money in the long run.

Pond hailed some of Justice's logic as necessary for the humane and fair treatment of juveniles in the Texas system, but has historically been critical of the decision which mandated that juveniles be heard only before attorney-judges. Pond is not an attorney.

Randall County Juvenile Probation Officers Harold Mann and Ronnie Cowart said last week the 5th Circuit Court ruling should have little impact in the area because of the intervening impact of federal laws on the handling of juvenile offenders.

Mann said the only effect might be a release from tension to get something done on a regional juvenile facility.

"Everything else has been legislated through," he said.

Mann said some of Justice's opinions were probably good, but some worked to the detriment of both society and the juvenile offender.

He cited specifically an opinion which made it easier to detain a juvenile who had run away from home than a juvenile who had committed a more serious crime such as murder.

Under the 5th Circuit Court ruling, the Justice rulings will be (See RULING, page 5)

Lone Star Farmer degree conferred

2 CHS grads take FFA honors

Two 1976 Canyon High School graduates have been named recipients of the Future Farmers of America Lone Star Farmer degree.

Bob Lindsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Lindsey, and Jack Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wire Wright, were honored at the state FFA convention in Dallas.

Both were members of the Canyon chapter of FFA during high school.

To gain the state ranking, the CHS graduates had to meet a stiff set of criteria, including:

*Having received the chapter Farmer degree and having been active in FFA for at least two years.

*Having earned and invested at least $500 by their own efforts from a supervised farming or related agricultural occupational program or have worked at least 600 hours in the case of a directed laboratory experience program.

*Having demonstrated leadership.

*Having a satisfactory scholastic record.

*Having participated in the planning and completion of chapter activities.

*Having participated in FFA activities above the chapter level.

Lindsey has been active in FFA activities for four years. During his senior year, he (See DEGREE, page 5) are shown at a county irrigation well pointing out the fact that a majority of irrigation well shafts remain uncovered resulting in numerous farming accidents across the state.

A flag given to Canyon by her sister city in Japan, Miniyak, was displayed last week when two Japanese freelance photographers visited here and brought Bicentennial gifts to

City eyes response to Pioneer at Railroad Commission hearing

Canyon officials will probably help support a group opposing Pioneer Natural Gas at a hearing by the Railroad Commission Sept. 14 in Austin.

Dr. Ewing to head Speech Department

The West Texas State University Department of Speech and Theatre will add a new department head and a speech and hearing therapist to its faculty this fall.

Dr. Ray Ewing, former Purdue University assistant professor of communication, will assume the duties of retiring department head Jack Walker.

Ewing joined the Purdue staff in 1971 after teaching at the Oklahoma College of Liberal Arts and Central Missouri State.

Author and editor, the Oklahoma native has published "Participating: Public Speaking, Debate, and Discussion" with the Houghton Mifflin Company in 1975.

He earned his bachelor's degree from Oklahoma City University and his master's and doctoral degrees from Southern Illinois University.

Nancy Cecile Chambers, who holds eight educational certifications, will reactivate the WTSU Speech and Hearing Clinic.

She has been the program administrator for the speech, language and hearing services in the Northside Independent School district in San Antonio since 1960. She also taught a graduate course in communication disorders at Texas A&I University.

Ms. Chambers initiated and organized a division of communication disorders and provided direct clinical services to patients in Brooke General Hospital in San Antonio in the summer of 1964. She served as a speech pathologist at the San Antonio Rehabilitation Center in summer, 1966.

Her certifications include educational diagnostician,

Cannon earns grant

A two-year ROTC scholarship has been awarded Patrick Cannon for outstanding performance at the Army's basic camp at Ft. Knox.

Cannon, a junior, attended the six-week camp this summer as a substitute for freshman and sophomore courses in military science.

The scholarship will pay books and tuition to any college or university with an ROTC program. Cannon has attended West Texas State University and plans to transfer this fall to Texas A&M to major in petroleum engineering.

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Cannon of Canyon.

Meals On Wheels

needs office help

Meals On Wheels is needing a local volunteer with available service hours between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to serve in the office.

The Meals On Wheels program provides inexpensive hot lunches for the elderly and other individuals needing the service. The position as office worker would be Monday through Friday and would include duties such as answering the telephone, providing information and some clerical work.

The office for Meals On Wheels is located at the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon. Anyone interested in giving volunteer service in the Meals On Wheels office may call 655-3676 or contact Rose Kinzer at 655-7636.

Genealogical study session Tuesday

High Plains Genealogical Society members will meet on Tuesday, July 27, in the Cornette Library at West Texas State University.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. with all members and other interested individuals encouraged to attend.

Mrs. Alfred Baker, a member of the Amarillo Genealogical Society, will present the program and discuss "research in South Carolina."

Utilities Committee, an organization of the cities on the Pioneer system.

Following a meeting of the utility steering committee in Lubbock, Jake Geron from Brownfield and Fred Poe, asstant city manager of Midland, asked Metcalf if Canyon would be willing to support on an equal basis the expense of hiring someone to respond to Pioneer's arguments.

Pioneer officials in May asked the Railroad Commission for a hearing to review the cost of gas for its West Texas system and to determine the appropriateness of the policies of Pioneer in maintaining its gas supply.

Metcalf said the committee would review the public exhibits to be presented by Pioneer and if there was a disagreement, the city will probably want to be represented at the hearing.

Basically, he said, Canyon and the other committee members would probably support Hereford's bid to reduce the 100 percent cost of gas pass through. Hereford city manager Dudley Bayne and the Hereford city commissioners have campaigned for nearly a year to limit the pass through rate.

School board to discuss replacement for Jacobs

Canyon School Board members will meet in executive session again Tuesday night to continue examining qualifications of candidates for the job of school superintendent.

No other business is scheduled for the meeting. Board President Tom Keeling said last week the board has received resumes from 16 candidates for the position so far and expect many more before a final decision is reached.

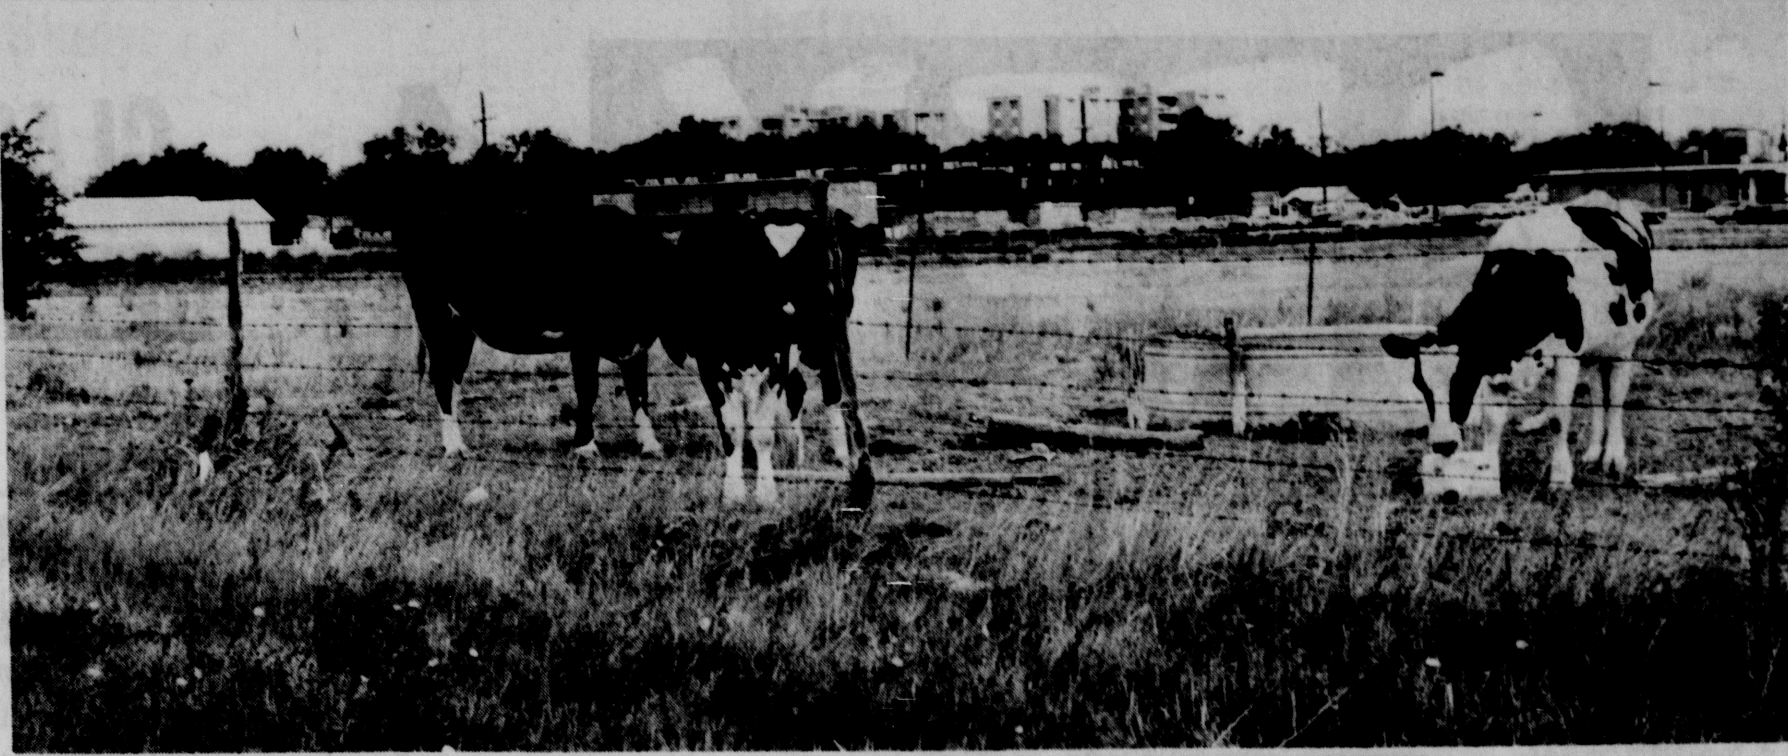

Current Supt. Jerry Jacobs, who came to Canyon in 1967, resigned earlier this month to take a similar position at Raymondville in South Texas. He is to leave next month for the job.

Board members during executive session two weeks ago outlined several criteria for their new superintendent.

Their criteria mandate that the candidates have had previous experience as superintendents and be certified at that level.

For the past several weeks, the board has met behind closed doors following regular business to discuss possible candidates for the position.

Birthday gift presented sister city

Visitors from Canyon's sister city in Japan came here this week bearing Bicentennial birthday gifts.

Katsuyoshi Suzuki and Hideaki Fugii are spending six months in the United States travelling to the sister cities Japan shares with this country. Canyon was the 73rd stop for the men, who arrived in California March 1.

They since have traveled up the Pacific coast, across to Boston, south to Florida and now west. They will return to Japan Sept. 10. Canyon is one of three cities in Texas that take part in the sister city program.

Canyon's Japanese counterpart is Miniyakami, a city of 10,000. The two city officials have exchanged gifts and Miniyakami city officials visited Canyon several years ago.

Suzuki and Fugii presented an intricately detailed paper carving and a flag Wednesday to Mayor Pro Tem, H. R. Fulton. Administrative Assistant Kevin Evans quickly rounded up a flag given earlier to Canyon to show them.

The two are traveling in a dark green Japanese compact car with the steering wheel situated on the right side. The auto is spotted with stickers from their trip.

Chamber of Commerce manager Roland Black gave the visitors the only sticker available pertaining to Canyon, "Follow Me to West Texas State University."

Tennis camp draws locals

Six Canyon area youngsters are currently among more than 250 young tennis players participating in the sixth annual West Texas Tennis Camp this week on the campus of West Texas State University.

The current camp is one of three scheduled this summer on the Canyon campus. The camp is under the direction of WTSU tennis coach David Kent and Amarillo Town Club pro Roland Ingram.

"We try to do two things in the camp," Kent says. "One, we try to improve each individual's game, and two, we try to have some fun."

Assisting Kent and Ingram are members of WTSU 1976 Missouri Valley Conference championship team. The Buffaloes won their fourth straight league title in the meet held on WTSU's 14 Layold courts in May. It was WT's fifth MVC championship in six years of competition.

In addition to the great tennis facilities, campers also have the use of the university's $4 million Student Activities Center.

Participants from Canyon in the third camp session this week are Ray Crossland, Matt Davis, Christopher Ennick, Jeff Brown, Stan Sanders, and Trey Kent.

Picnic honors Richard Bales

Canyon Band Parents will host a picnic honoring Richard Bales, assistant band director here who is leaving Aug. 1 for a post in Borger.

The picnic will be at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Conner Park and all friends, former students, students and band parents are invited.

Bales will be band director at Borger High School.

Ruling. . .

submitted to new hearings before a three-judge federal panel.

The court said one judge does not have the power to make the sweeping changes in state law that Justice imposed.

Justice's rulings mandated that Gatesville School for Boys and Mountain View State School for Boys be closed, and a variety of other far-reaching changes.

"It is precisely this type of thorough-going disruption of a state's autonomous implementation of its own legislative and administrative policies that warrants the added deliberation and procedural protection provided by the three-judge court statute," the court ruled in overturning the Justice mandates.

remodeling, rehabilitation of buildings, library materials and capital equipment, as well as land acquisitions and new construction. Thereafter, the legislature should discontinue making appropriations for major repairs and rehabilitations in the public universities.

*That the constitutional amendments submitted to the voters on the Permanent University Fund and the Ad Valorem Tax Bonds programs provide that tax revenues to a school not committed or needed for bond retirement may be paid into a sinking fund the interest from which must be used for academic enrichment.

*Appropriate steps should be taken by the legislature so that greater emphasis is placed upon space utilization and demonstrable space needs and less upon projected student enrollments in distributing funds available under the Ad Valorem Tax program.

*That the legislature consider legislation to prohibit public senior colleges upon the retirement of bonds from again encumbering the student fees to new bonds unless prior finding of need and justification for continuing the fee is presented to the legislature or to an agency designated by the legislature.

*That the authority to issue tuition revenue bonds not be extended to additional institutions and the maximum levels of presently authorized tuition revenue bonds not be increased.

Church site of marriage

First Baptist Church of Stratford was the setting for the double ring marriage vows exchanged between Miss Mary Joann Meek and Daniel Douglas Ferrell on Saturday evening, July 24.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo L. Meek of Stratford and graduated from West Texas State University, with a BS degree in elementary education. She is a 1971 graduate of Stratford High School.

The late Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ferrell of Amarillo were parents of the bridegroom who has served four years with the United States Marines and formerly attended West Texas State University. He is the past assistant plant manager for Levi Strauss in Amarillo and is now employed as a sales territory manager for Levi Strauss and Company.

Rev. William Tanner of Wildorado officiated at the double ring wedding service where the focal point of the altar decorations were matching spiral candelabrum bearing white tapers with a central wedding archway decorated in greenery. Red bows marked the family pews and side bouquet at the altar featured red and white gladioli arranged in Grecian urns on pedestal bases. Candles were lit by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Kay Ferrell, and William D. Meek, brother of the bride.

Prenuptial musical selections were presented at the organ by Mrs. Olinda Boardman with Mike O'Brien accompanying at the piano. Mrs. Nellie Ingham and Bob Boardman were vocalists with Mrs. Ingham presenting Follow Me by John Denver and Mr. Boardman presenting The Lord's Prayer. The musical service was completed with a duet arrangement by the vocalists titled There Is Love.

As the bride entered the sanctuary, she presented her mother with a long stemmed red rose and following the exchange of marriage vows presented the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Vinita Ferrell, with a long stemmed red rose.

Escorted and presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length wedding gown of polished locked knit quiana which was designed with a cummerbund waist, and fitted bodice overlain with a yoke of Venice lace. The dress featured a stand-up collar banded with lace, a fitted sleeve overlaid with lace to the wrist, and a controlled sweeping skirt. The wedding dress was a line styling with fullness at the back sweeping to form a sanctuary train. The bride's cathedral length wedding veil was completely bordered with a deep lace and attached to a bridal bandau of matching lace.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath carried on a white wedding Bible which was a gift from her maid of honor. To carry out the marriage traditions, the bride wore her wedding dress as "something new", her bridal garter as "something blue", and carried an old handkerchief which had belonged to her late grandmother Meek as "something old and borrowed." She wore a string of pearls with matching pearl earrings, which were a gift from the bridegroom, as her only jewels for the occasion.

Miss Barbara Wright of Vernon served as the maid of honor and other bridal attendants were Mrs. Jana Bessire of Lamesa and Mrs. Robert Meek of Odessa as bridesmaids with Miss Carolyn Allen of Stratford as bridesmaid.

The bridal attendants wore floorlength dresses of red and white dotted swiss with empire waist styling. Red velvet sashes complemented the waists and matching red velvet sashes were used to band their wide brimmed picture hats. The dresses were styled with short sleeves edged in white lace and each bridal attendant carried a bouquet of red and white pixie carnations accented with baby's breath and red streamers.

Michael Tigart of Amarillo was best man and groomsmen included James Farren of Canyon, David Upton and Jerry Goyne, both of Amarillo. Ushering duties were handled by the bride's brothers, Dr. Robert L. Meek of Odessa and William Dean Meek of Dallas.

A reception for the newlyweds followed in the fellowship hall of the church where the bride's table was centered with a bouquet arrangement featuring white china mums, red carnations, baby's breath and greenery. White candles complemented the silver candelabra as guests were served slices from the four-tiered wedding cake which was adorned with an arrangement of fresh greenery, red roses, red pixie carnations and baby's breath. Red punch was served from the silver punch bowl with nuts and mints being served from silver table accessories.

A silver candelabrum entwined with greenery, bearing white candles, decorated the bridegroom's table where the cake was a double-tiered red velvet cake. Coffee was served from a silver service.

The soft flowing skirt was swept to a chapel length wedding train. The styling of the wedding gown was complemented with the shoulder length bouffant wedding veil which was attached to a headpiece encrusted with lace medallions and tiny seed pearls.

West Texas State University's vice president of student affairs, Dr. T. Paige Carruth, is shown giving dictation to his secretary, Betty Webb, who recently achieved the CPS rating as a certified professional secretary. She has been secretary for the office some 13 months.

Local woman gets

CPS rating through extensive test

Betty Webb was among the 4,900 candidates taking the extensive examination to become a CPS (Certified Professional Secretary) this year.

The total of 4,900 CPS candidates was an increase of 500 candidates over 1975. There were 8,500 Certified Secretaries in last year's count including six with CPS certificates in Canyon and 12 in Amarillo.

The CPS rating represents the highest honor available to those in the secretarial profession and Mrs. Webb relates that the CPS award gives a "responsibility for nurturing, inspiring and aiding others to achieve the professional goal."

All CPS candidates must be a high school graduate or equivalent with a minimum of three years of verified secretarial experience including a secretarial position for 12 months continuous with one employer within the past five years. All qualifications must be met within a 25 year period.

CPS examinations are administered annually at approved colleges and universities and this year West Texas State University was selected as the testing center for Canyon and surrounding area secretaries.

The CPS examination covers six main points including: Environmental Relationships in Business which covers the principles of human relations with peers, subordinates and superiors; Business and Public Policy, which covers the knowledge of major elements of business law involved in the secretary's daily life including contracts, bailments, sales laws, insurance and real property; Economics and Management including the principles of management and elements of business operations such as personnel, finances, production and marketing; Financial Analysis and Mathematics of Business which stresses the principles of financial and managerial accounting; Communications and Decision Making which covers job priorities including abilities such as dictation, typewriting, as well as skills for editing, listening, composing, abstracting, and judging work acceptability; and Office Procedures which tests the administrative know-how of the secretary and concerns the basic concepts of current secretarial procedures including office and records management along with the fundamentals of business date processing.

The Institute for Certifying Secretaries furnishes to successful candidates official notification of their testing along with certification which Mrs. Webb expects to receive in early fall along with other area CPS candidates.

Mrs. Webb has for the past 13 months been employed as a secretary at West Texas State University for the Student Affairs Office. Her supervisor is Dr. T. Paige Carruth, vice president of student affairs at the university.

In addition to her career, Mrs. Webb is a member of the National Secretaries Association (International) and active in the Palo Duro Chapter in Amarillo. She has served two terms as recording secretary, served as secretary-treasurer and is presently in her second term as first vice president of the chapter.

Along with her profession, Mrs. Webb considers her family as the "most important reason for her work." She and her husband, Charles Webb, have two daughters including Shanna who will be attending West Texas State University this fall and Tyra who will be a sixth grade student at Rex Reeves Elementary School. Mr. Webb is a technician employed with ASARCO who had previously been associated with Pantex some 15 years.

Her own mode of relaxation, after a busy day at the Student Affairs Office of the university, includes cooking for the family and sewing. She also enjoys arts and crafts for her hobbies.

Nation is run by its secretaries, says sociologist

Secretaries run the country and should get credit for their role in making America run smoothly, a West Texas State University sociologist told members of local secretaries chapter Thursday night.

"The importance of the secretary is a part of the organizational revolution, the importance of organizations in modern societies," Dr. Mary Sheldon told members of the Tierra Blanca Chapter of the National Secretaries Association. "As organizations have become more important and pervade more and more of our lives, the people who are instrumental in running organizations and in maintaining relationships between organizations are the people who are running the country.

"One of the most important groups of these people, then, are secretaries."

All good secretaries are both administrators and psychologists, she said.

"A good secretary performs many functions and she must have multiple talents and capabilities," Dr. Sheldon said. "Any office, any organization and any boss is only as good as the secretary."

Today's managers can be judged for effectiveness by observation of their secretaries.

"A good manager selects a good secretary, but he also gives her the responsibility and leeway to make decisions," she said. "He expects her to be able to run the office without direct supervision from him."

The secretary in today's modern office performs several functions which give her task an importance unrecognized by many within the organization.

Secretaries, for example, Dr. Sheldon said, are gatekeepers—"people that stand in certain critical positions in a system. Whatever happens in other parts of the system must go through them."

"Therefore, they are in a position to alter or distort communications between parts of the organization to facilitate communications, to prevent communications."

"In short, they have power—power that far exceeds their formal job specifications or their status in the organization or in the society. They have power to a degree that is typically unrecognized by others."

Dr. Sheldon said secretaries are the major gatekeepers of the society.

"They have a great deal of power through this function, power to affect the boss and power to affect the clients or whoever else needs access to the organization," she said. "It is through her that access to the boss is gained either personally or by mail or by phone. Therefore, she is in a position of control and control is power."

Secretaries also have unrecognized power because in most organizations they are aware of secrets of the company they work for or the personnel they work with or for.

"Do you ever recall reading of a secretary who has sold information to a foreign government?" she asked. "Do you ever recall reading of a secretary who has sold industrial secrets to another company? Undoubtedly, this has happened, but apparently it is so rare, apparently the loyalty of secretaries is so trustworthy, that it isn't even considered a problem worthy of consideration."

Secretaries, she said, know more information about more people and more organizations and their business than any other single group of people.

"Yet all of us—bosses, clients and public—trust them completely to hold this information in confidence," she said.

Secretaries are also important because in most cases the good secretary is a storehouse of information. She knows where to find information, how to find information and how to use information.

Nevertheless, she said, many secretaries find themselves in stressful situations.

"Part of the stress she feels, I think, is that she is the person in the middle, between her boss and other employees of the office or between her boss and members of the larger organization," Dr. Sheldon said.

The secretary must also usually function as a psychologist, creating a pleasant place in which to work.

For all her tasks and responsibilities, the secretary is often unappreciated and underpaid, Dr. Sheldon said.

"The occupation of secretary should be upgraded, have more status, and all that goes along with higher status, not just because secretaries want it, but because secretaries deserve it," she said.

Secretaries themselves must work toward a rise in status for their occupation, she said, and a first step is for each secretary to work on her ability to relate to other people in a personal way.

The secretary must also be competent in job skills, and must continue learning new office techniques.

Through organizations such as the National Secretaries Association, the secretaries can also work to gain the respect and recognition they deserve, Dr. Sheldon said.

Grandson's enrollment in WT fulfills a cook's lifelong dream

Mrs. Alex Arellano, an El Paso cook, knows her life is full of blessings.

"My cup runneth over. It's just beautiful," she says.

Mrs. Arellano drove all night from El Paso with her daughter and two grandchildren to reach West Texas State University's summer orientation session on time.

Her grandson Robert McCullough will enter West Texas State in the fall to major in mass communications, and yet another part of Mrs. Arellano's dream will be fulfilled.

"I only had a grammar school education. To me, an education was like a hunger," she says. "I always thought my children should get an education, and they did."

To help her children, she opened a small cafe many years ago to supplement her husband's income. Two of her children are now teachers, and Mrs. Arellano continues her dream for her grandchildren.

"I always told them that being a Christian family is not saying you are a Christian. You have to show that you are different. You have to have a goal, and put it in your mind that you are going to do it," the small, lively lady says.

The Arellano family is very close to their grandmother. When the little ones are sick, they call for her to comfort them, and Mrs. Arellano will drive an hour to discuss her grandchildren's education with their parents.

When her son was telling Mrs. Arellano's mother about his college education, she abruptly asked him, "How far are you from El Paso? Are you in Van Horn?"

Knowing immediately that his grandmother wanted to know how soon he would be finished, he responded, "No, Grandmother, I'm in Fort Hancock." Van Horn is approximately 120 miles from El Paso, while Fort Hancock is only 50.

"My mother, she's an Indian, and she would not have understood if he had told her how many hours in college he had left. But this way, she knew what he was talking about," Mrs. Arellano remembered.

"If you have a goal, it is a sacrifice. But it is just beautiful when you know you are there, and we are half-way," she says.

"It's a beautiful dream."

Mrs. Arellano resides at 7125 Tangerine, El Paso.

WALLS conform to one of three options: #ONE - 6" walls with R-19* insulation. #TWO - tongue and grooved styrofoam sheathing. 4" walls and R-11* insulation. or #THREE - R-15* minimum insulation. Walls must include a vapor barrier of 6 mil. polyethylene or foil-backed sheetrock. Sill insulation or sill caulking (under bottom plate) is also required.

CEILING insulation must equal R-30*.

FLOORS (if pier and beam construction) must be insulated with R-13*. In slab floors choose between Option #1, rigid urethane or styrofoam (3/4 minimum thickness) from top of floor along the outside edge of the slab down to the brick ledge, or Option #2, vermiculite poured in the cavity between bricks and slab up to the top of the floor.

WINDOWS AND DOORS are weather-stripped and caulked. Double pane glass or storm windows and insulated core or storm doors also ensure energy efficiency. It is recommended that glass area not exceed 8% of floor space.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS include the use of cool fluorescent lighting, a heating/cooling system like the heat pump that maximizes efficiency and an electronic air cleaner to be used with moving air systems.

Today there is no need to sacrifice comfort to save energy and money. The Energy Efficient Home - like everything else electric - is as modern as tomorrow. Parks panel is stuck on master park plan

The city parks and recreation board Thursday inched toward the next step in the development of Southeast Park — the preparation of an application for state and federal funds.

Progress has been stalled for several months while city officials wait for the parks board to complete a master plan for developing the new park.

Kevin P. Evans, hired recently as administrative assistant, has been assigned the park grant application as his first major project.

"Everywhere I turn, I'm blocked," he said. "I just have to have the master plan."

City manager Glen Metcalf told the board that decisions on facilities and their locations would need to be definite. Later changes would require them to make an entire new application.

Metcalf said the city would probably apply for a two-year grant of $25,000 each year to be equally matched with city funds. That request has the best chance of being funded he told the board.

An estimate for $9,648 for the water line into the park was presented, and cost of the two baseball diamonds under construction now was estimated

A continuation of the study on the "Seven Churches of Revelation" will be discussed by Rev. Jim Brown, pastor, at the 7 o'clock evening worship services for Calvary Baptist Church today.

An all church ice cream social is planned for 6 p.m. August 1 at the Methodist Student Center on the campus of West Texas State University. All church families are invited to participate.

A picnic for the Juanelva Rose Circle of First United Methodist Church of Canyon is planned for Tuesday evening, July 27, beginning at 7 p.m. in Conner Park.

Rev. Lindsey McQuoid, pastor of the Wesley United Methodist Church of Amarillo, will lead the devotional program at the SPRY (Sixty Plus Years) group meeting on Thursday, July 22. The meeting will begin at noon in the church fellowship hall and will include a luncheon.

The "men" of First Baptist Church are planning a special summertime fishing trip for the week end of August 5-7 in New Mexico. Cost to each fisherman will be $5 plus the New Mexico fishing license and those planning to participate are asked to sign up at the church office.

Safety week:

Young Farmers urge prevention of farm accidents

Remembering safety is timely for any group of individuals — and for the Randall County Young Farmers and the Farm Bureau of Randall County this week, July 25-31, will be observed as "Farm Safety Week."

Local observance of the week was recommended this past week with a proclamation for the local farm organizations being signed by Randall County Judge Woody Pond.

In combined reports of statewide Farm Bureau member affiliates, accidental death records on the year show that at least 300 Texas farm and ranch people died during 1975 including 123 from farm traffic accidents, 35 from mishandling of tractors, 28 from drownings, 21 from firearms, 16 from fires and burns, 14 from improper precautions with farm machinery, 14 from animals, 11 from falls, 10 from electrical current, 9 from other vehicle accidents such as trailers, 6 from suffocation, 6 from poisoning, 3 from lightning, 3 from tornadoes, 2 from being struck by objects, 2 from stepping on nails and 3 from other specified farm accidents.

"Randall County recorded three of the 1975 farm deaths," noted the local report.

The theme for this year's Farm Safety Week is "Educate For Safety" and throughout the thirteen Farm Bureau Districts of Texas thirteen fieldmen visit specific areas to present animated and graphic safety educational programs across the state. Presently there are 210 organized county Farm Bureaus and the safety educational programs are available not only to local Farm Bureaus but also for public school programs, civic club meetings, youth organizations and other groups discussing safety education throughout the year.

According to George Cox and Roger Gist, local representatives of the two local farming organizations, this summer's farming activities have resulted in three serious injuries along with one farm accident fatality this spring.
